Haig 'losing prestige'

WASHINGTON, March 26 (AP) - President Ronald Reagan insisted Wednesday that Alexander M. Haig, Jr. remains his "chief adviser on foreign affairs," but other officials said the U.S. Secretary of State clearly has lost prestige and anthority because of Vice President George Bush's appointment as Crisis manager. Reagan's affirmation followed a talk with Haig on the third consecutive day the secretary has visited the White House. The president denied any suggestion that Haig had threatened to quit over the new role for Bush, one which he wanted for himself.

But one informed official said privately hat while Haig, who went public with his inhappiness Tuesday, would not resign this inhappiness Tuesday, would not resign this ime, any further "public rebukes" from the White House might cause the strong-willed ecretary to leave.

The official said Haig was "very upset and nlking" and was "pounding the table" because he wasn't given Crisis command uthority by the White House. Although the resident reaffirmed that Haig was his "prinipal adviser on foreign affairs. Haig was aid to feel the endorsement fell short of what se wanted because Reagan didn't explicitly say the secretary of the state was in charge of carrying out the foreign policy.

The officiall who did not want to be identified, said Haig literally had heen "pounding the table" in frustration and anger at a turn of events that seemed to downgrade his importance in the administration.

Presidential Press Secretary James Brady, however, has predicted even greater cooperation between the White House and the State Department, saying he now expects Haig to participate in Reagan's daily national security briefings, that role previously has failed to Security Adviser Richard V. Allen, but apparently now will he shared." He probably will he here most days," Brady said of Haig. "He's there to enhance cooperation."

Bush, meanwhile, foresees no conflict with Haig. Secretary Haig and 1 get along very well indeed.

One administration official, who insisted on anonymity, said, "What you've got here is a little presidential politics for 1984 or 1988" - a preliminary power skirmish hetween Haig and Bush, who could be rivals in the years ahead for the top presidential nomina-

'Break the mold of British politics' Jenkins leads new major party

LONDON, March 26 (AP) - Britain's first new major political party in 80 years, the Social Democratic Party-(SDP), was formally lannched Thursday, with its leaders pledging to hreak the mold of British politics and the nation's long-surviving class divisions. "We want to get away from the politics of outdated dogma and class con-frontation," declared Roy Jenkins, a former deputy leader of the opposition Labor Party. Jenkins and the three other joint leaders of the SDP — all senior cabinet ministers in Britain's last Labor government - appeared at a crowded news conference.

The formation of the Social Democrats, led by Jenkins, former Foreign Secretary David Owen, former Education Secretary Shirley Williams, and former Transport Secretary William Rodgers, is regarded hy some observers as the most significant development in British politics since World War II.

The Social Democrats seek to capture the middle ground between the two major parties, leftward-drifting Labor and the ruling Conservatives headed by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, widely regarded as ber party's most right-wing leader since World War II.

The SDP is accused by the two major parties of trying to be all things to all people and woolly on policy. As if 10 counter this, the new party announced a generalized 12-point platform.

It urged a mixed economy and more positive efforts toward fairer wealth distribution, while avoiding Labor's latest plans for widespread nationalization. It also will promote women's and ethnic minority rights. On foreign policy, the SDP, which describes itself as left-of-center, is close to the Conservatives.

It favors continued membership of the 10-nation European Economie Community, generally unpopular among British voters, and a strong British role in the NATO Western alliance, It also wants multilateral nuclear disarmament, not British unilateral disarmament as officially sought by the Labor Party,

Meanwhile, the Labor Party has called on the defecting members to resign their seats in the House of Commons, but under British electoral law they need not do so.

The men are wanted in connection with the apparent kidnapping of Biggs on March 16, when he was grabbed in a Rio De Janeiro restaurant and thrown into a mini-van in the view of onlookers. He was then reportedly flown to Belem in a rented plane, and put on a yacht bound for the Caribbean.

The Barbados coast guard took bim from . the yacht Monday night, and he now is in police custody in Bridgetown. Biggs fled to Brazil in 1970 after having escaped from a prison term he received as a result of his part in the $7 million train robbery in 1963. He was allowed to stay in Brazil on a legal technicality, but was placed under permanent federal police surveillance.

Meanwhile in London, as lawyers for Biggs prepared Inursday to test the legality of his detention in Barbados, the man thought to be behind the abduction of the 51-year-old criminal denied reports Biggs was paid for being kidnapped. The newspaper said Ellis, a former Oxford University student born in Australia, was recruited for the Nazis hy a relative and then decided to work for the Soviets purely for the money. After serving with Stephenson, Ellis returned to British secret service headquarters in London and was placed in the No. 3 position in Britain's spy hierarchy, the paper were recorded three years ago in Train's small book called True Remarkable Occurr ences. The book was an encore to an earlier Train work, Remarkable Names of Real People, and its sequel, Even More Remarkable Names.

In these latter two collections, Train informed a startled world that there are actual people walking around who answer to legal names like Immaculate Conception Finkelstein, Positive Wasserman Johnson, Iva Odor and F. G. Verenesneckockkrockoff who, as a defendant in an 1897 murder trial must have perplexed the writers of head lines. .

At the early age of 52, John Train bas snow-white hair, which may have nothing to do with his avocational field of study, although it could do that to a man to find out that there are living people with names like T. Fud Pucker Tucker and Legrunt E. Crapper.

In his pin-stripe suit and bow tie, Train is the very model of a man you would trust to manage your money. His accent has several generations of Harvard in it, and to meet him at his desk in the Park Avenue firm of which be is president, you wouldn't guess that his patrician bead is adaptable to interests so frivolous.

Train is the author of Dance of the Money Bees and The Money Masters, two irreproachably straight-faced works in the field of finance, but his books of bizarrerie have sold at approximately twice the rate of his serious writings.

Although his memory and his files are crammed with names to make the mind marvel, Train is content to be called John." My father chose it," he says, "because he thought John Train bad a nice bterary ring to it." Arthur Train took it for granted that his son would be a writer like himself.

The elder Train was a New York district attorney back in the days of the Tong wars and the first flowering of the Mafia in this country, but he is much better remembered as the creator of Ephraim Tutt, the yankee lawyer in the stove-pipe hat who starred in innumerable short stories in the Saturday Evening Post.

BOSTON, (WP) - The new "skin equivalent," as it is sometimes called, can be grown in almost unlimited amounts starting with just a few natural skin cells. And it can be transplanted back to the donor of the natural cells with a high degree of success.

The work has been done so far in rats. But this new tissue could offer hope to humans who suffer often fatal and almost always distorting, disabling burns over large parts of their bodies.

The first experiment in humans is just starting. Earlier this year, Dr. Eugene Bell, the Massachusetts Institute of Teebnology hiologist who discovered the new technique, created a tiny patch of artificial skin from his own cells and apy hed it to his arm.

"It looks good so far," be said two days later. "But this is very early. What we have, 1 want to emphasize, is something we think is exciting, something new that seems to work in animals, but that we have to prove out in well persons, then in hurn patients. This is not ready yet for medical application."

Still, said Bell's co-worker, Dr. H. Paul Ehrlich, "this looks very encouraging, because this skin is actually living skin, with viable epidermal and fibrohlast cells" -outer and inner skin cells.

What is more, Bell said, "The same technique, if it continues to succeed for skin cells, might very possibly be applied to grow other (types of) cells, too.'

The technique is described in the weekly journal Science by Dr. Bell, Drs. Ehrlich and David Buttle of the noted Shriners' burn unit at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, and Takako Nakatsuji of MIT.

It involves simply taking a small sample from a rat, then isolating the fibroblast, or connective-tissue, cells that make up the inner part of the skin - the dermis - and growing them in a nutrient solution. The new cells that are harvested are then combined with collagen --- the main protein skin, taken from the rat's tail - to gradually form a 'matrix" or lattice-like bed.

Then, a few days before transplantation, some of the rat's epidermal or outer skin cells are applied to the lattice, so the ultimate product is indeed a living skin elosely related though not identical to the donor's own skin. The scientists working with it variously call it "skin substitute," skin equivalent," "artificial skin" or just "skin,"

In treating burns, some of the patient's own skin is commonly removed and transplanted to cover the burned areas. "But in the extensively burned," said Dr. Ehrlich, "if the burn covers more than 50 per cent of the body, or perhaps even less, there just isn't that much skin left to use."

Removing it may also further traumatize a patient already in poor or precatious shape.

When a hurn isn't covered with the patient's own skin, and somotimes it is, thick sections of scar tissue form and eventually shrink, pulling the surrounding and underlying tissues out of position. This can cause severe distortion and crippling.

WASHINGTON, (WP) - It's a misnomer, of course. You don't get jet lag from jets - not from the engines, not from the stream. You don't even have to travel to get it. It was simply that no one noticed it very much, really, until all those zomhies started pouring out of all those jetliners, especially eastbound.

In fact, jet lag is more accurately known as circadian desynchronization - and more simply known as getting your body clock messed up. Knowledge of the physiological basis of sleep and sleep disorders has burgeoned in the last decade or so, and enough studies have been done to permit some conclusions about jet lag — and its care and feeding. The human body is an extraordinarily complex operation run hy an even more complex computer, the brain.

Physiological operations are generally cyclical, perhaps even more so than has vet been established, some experts feel. And some of the body's hiological rhythms have been measured and confirmed. (These have nothing to do with the so-called biorhythms that are purported to predict"up" days and "down" days on the basis of one's hirthday.) e body cycles that re roughly gear ed to a 24-bo rhythms. Through their operation such functions as heartbeat, body temperature, perhaps even hunger, as well as the functions of the endocrine glands, the cardiovascular system and the nervous system are regulated.

The units are arranged along curving drives and cul-de-sacs reminiscent of a middle-class suburban development, hut the illusion is ruined by the litter, the bare patches of ground and the rusted cars sitting in the driveways.

Curtis Walker, 13, lived in Bowen Homes. He was last seen alive on Feb. 19 at a nearby shopping center. He was found March 6, dead of asphyxiation, floating in the South River across town, Number 20.

Eddie Lee George, a 33-year-old, unemployed brick mason, sits on his stoop at Bowen Homes picking over collard greens for the evening's supper. He speaks softly, tentatively searching for a way to express his frustration.

When you go from day shift to night shift and back to day shift on your job, or when you fly into the sunset, you are inflicting strains on your body clock that are enough to Ď pop any self-respecting mainspring.

The body's clock, however, is extraordinarily resilient. In general, it will adjust. It's your clock, after all, and really quite accommodating to your needs. Custom-built, you 0 might say.

Given half a chance, it might adjust even before you jolt it by a trip into a piece of yesterday or tomorrow.

But the bottom line is this: when you shock your body clock, throw a monkey wrench into those delicately balanced rhythms, you're going to know about it.

More and more attention is being paid to the repeated circadian disruptions suffered by pilots and other aircraft personnel, disruptions that could have ominous ramifications. Shift workers like air-traffic controllers and nuclear-plant workers are also at risk. Rep. Barry Goldwater Jr., R-Calif, who is a pilot as well as a legislator, has been Ķ concerned for some time about the possible relationship between air accidents and possible body-clock-zonked pilots.

Joe Tymczyszyn, Goldwater's staff assistant on the Honse science and technology committee, has researched jet lag in all its ramifications. He is not a scientist, but has done a good hit of research, using himself as a guinea pig, and may be one of the top jet-lag savants in the world.

In part, as a result of Goldwater's efforts, NASA is conducting a three-year study of the problem and will eventually publish a pamphlet useful to laymen as well as to pilots. They will also do a field study on pilots at work and in NASA simulators where experimental swings in shifts would have only experimental failout.

'They say we're vigilantes, but we're not," said Jack Green, a lanky retired postal worker, as he sat on the couch in his linoleum-floored apartment at Techwood Homes, a downtown public housing project. 'We're only here to protect our community. We baven't had any incidents, and we don't want anything to happen.'

Green, president of the Techwood Homes Tenants' Association, made newspaper front pages and the evening newscasts last week when his group announced the formation of an armed patrol to guard the neighborhood's children against the "crazed racist killer."

Many residents of the bousing project say they disapprove of the plan for patrols con-sisting of juveniles carrying baseball bats and adults toting firearms. Many also question the involvement of Green's" consultant" - a dreadlock-wearing political activist named Chimurenga Jenga who lives across town. Still, the patrol does have the support of some Techwood residents, and later last week tenants in another housing project also announced plans to arm themselves. The specter of Atlanta's public housing projects turning into armed camps gives nightmares to officials like Public Safety Commissioner Lee P. Brown, who insists, "there will be only one police force in Atlanta."

As Green and Jenga worked last week on the plans for starting their patrol, with Jenga periodically dashing back into Green's kitchen to take phone calls from reporters, two police officers — Jenga called them a "community cool-out team" — dropped by. 'The fear is definitely there," says Officer

Clarence Hiley, who grew up in Atlanta. "Even beyond the children, the fear is there in general of the way the city is growing so fast. We're seeing things here we've never seen before. Atlanta has gotten away from the old ways, caring for people."

A day later, Hiley was one of the squad of officers that arrested Jenga for carrying a riflein the maiden Techwood patrol.

"I am against them," says Margie Smith, a Techwood resident, as the patrol got under way. But another woman who passed the commotion of press and police marking the patrol's first outing said: "I don't hlame them. I know it's white people that's doing all this. I know it."

"That 'city too busy to hate' stuff is all nonesense," a black politician said the day the patrol started, over lunch at Paschal's, the black-owned motel that has become an Atlanta institution, "Blacks and whites may work together and even socialize together, but the bottom line is still the economic line, and blacks haven't crossed it."

Egypt's new dream : creating a desert sea By Don A. Schanche

CAIRO, Egypt, (LAT) - In one of the most granthose engineering schemes of all time, Egypt plans to create a new Dead Sea northwest of Cairo in a vast desert depression that is almost as big as Massachusetts.

The ambitious design for a new source of hydroelectric power will involve blasting and digging a chain of canals and tunnels from the Mediterranean across the World War II battlefield of El Alamein to the Qattara depression, an almost lifeless dent in the earth that occupies a 15th of Egypt's land surface and drops to 436 feet below sea level.

Sea water racing from the 70-mile canaltunnel through power-generating turbines as it plunges into the depression could produce up to 6 hillion kilowatt bours of electricity a year, balf of the maximum output of the Aswan high dam.

A prodigious evaporation rate of 20 billion cubie meters of water a year would prevent the newly-formed inland sea from filling the depression completely, planners expect the water to level off at about 200 feet below sea level, leaving a highly saline surface about the size of Connecticut.

"I don't think there bas been a comparable project in history - more complicated than the high dam and far more difficult than digging the Suez Canal," said Kamal M. Hamed, the engineer who heads the Qattara Project Authority.

The sheer size of the job, which would require excavating more than 100 million cubic meters of earth in rocky and partly mountainous terrain, has led some experts to dismiss it as impractical ever since a German geographer first proposed pouring sea water into Qattara in 1916.

But the rising cost of oil and Egypt's growing need for new power sources have stramatically changed the cost-henefit projections of the $2 billion hydroelectric plan.

"What look of foothardy 65 years a rot and even 10 years ago, makes solid imancial sense today and will make even more sense in the 1990s when the project is completed." Hamed said.

The new technique has been used in 52 grafts in rats - grafts measuring up to fourtenths of an inch long and sometimes covering 10 to 15 per cent of the body, and there has been no rejection or sloughing off of the new skin. Eighty per cent of the graft bave kept their original size and shape for up to 13 months so far.

"What seems to bappen," Ehrlich said, "is that some of the cells in the graft move to the normal adjoining skin, and some of the cells in the normal skin move to the graft.

GENEVA, March 26(R) - Representatives of 40 governments are meeting bere to discuss ways to fight international pirates who deprive legitimate record and cassette companies of millions of dollars a year.

The companies estimate the bootlengers control nearly 10 per cent of the world market in records, tapes and films and took in $1.5 billioo last year. Today's pirates have little of the glamor of their predecessors although the takings are richer. Instead of operating in leaky galleons on the high seas. they work from back alleys with high-speed duplicators and a batch of cheap tapes.

"Nowadays, record pirates are often the same people who are active in other illegal enterprises such as the trade in dangerous drugs," says the International Federation of Producers of Phonograms and Videograms (IFPI), linking the legitimate music and videotape business in 68 countries. "In the United States and Europe, for example, it is clear that there are close links between record piracy and organized crime," the federation reports. "In South East Asia there are many indications of similar connections."

From Europe to Asia piracy bas created a crisis for record and film producers, leading the United Nations Copyright Protection Organization to call a special three-day meeting bere this week. The 40 government delegations are bere attend the worldwide forum on the piracy of sound and andiovisual recordings convened by the Geneva-based World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO).

We are not talking about the persoo at home who puts a record on cassette or who videotapes a television program" a WIPO official said. "We are talking about big business - commercial piracy on a large scale." In Turkey, pirate recordings of the disco bit films Grease and Saturday Night Fever ' weot on sale before the authorized versioos could even be produced.

"In the United States, pirated video casettes of the films Star Wars, Close films were released in cinema halls," the International Labor Organization (ILO) said in a report to the forum. The ILO keeps a special watch over piracy because of the revenue lost by entertainers and actors. The ILO said a French trade unioo bad estimated that if piracy continued unchecked throughout the world during the next five years, one half of the record companies would close down.

More than 100,000 persons are estimated to work in producing, manufacturing and distributing records in the European Common Market (EEC). But the pirates also rob thousands of artists and composers. One French singer found that his whole act bad beeo pirated in Latin America - wbeo he turned up for a scheduled concert and was challenged about his identity. A man using bis songs, his beard and beret style and even his name bad already been

In most of Western Europe the percentage is estimated at less thao 10 per cen1, aod ofteo less than five per cent. But the proportion reaches about 35 per cent io Italy and as much as 80 per cent in Portugal, IFPI said in a paper prepared

In Latin America the rates vary between 10 per cent in Uruguay to about 50 per cent in some Central American states. But more than 80 per cent of the tape market last year went to pirates in India, Indonesia, South Korea, Singapore and Thailand, IFPI reported:

Western Europe and the U.S. accounted for some of the international traffic in pirate recordings. "But the really massive export trade in pirate product is from Southeast Asia all over the world," IFPI says. Worldwide figures for videotape piracy are not available. But the ILO notes estimates that video piracy accounted for nearly 30 per cent of the legal market in the United States last year.

"In other parts of the world the situation is even more serious," the ILO said. "Seventy-five per cent of the video cassettes in the Middle East and 80 per cent in India are illegal." One problem about stopping the pirates is the ease with which they can set up their operations.

David Gibbins, director of IFPI's antipiracy operations, reports: "in most parts of the world, the capital cost of a high-speed duplicator, the only piece of equipment necessary for commercial reproduction of cassette tapes, can be paid for out of the proceeds of approximately 40 running hours of the equipment."

Another obstacle is that fines for piracy in some countries are low, IFPI says. In Britain the maximum fine for a first offence is two sterling per copy. This contrasts with the U.S., where maximum fines for a first offence can go up to $25,000. But government clampdowns can work. Hong Kong set up an anti-piracy unit as part of its customs and excise service in 1973. The industry believed then that 50 pirated copies were produced for every legitimate cassette tape recording sold. Now the pirates' share of the market is put at less than five per cent.

Regional projects EEC lends

BRUSSELS, March 26 (AP) - The European Economic Community granted Britain $670 million Wednesday for regional projects, as part of the $1.4 billion package Britain won in last year's EEC budget fight.

Announcement of the gran1 came the day after a summit meeting in which West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt angrily accused Britain of not living up 10 the bargain that made the funds available, Schmidt said the British receged on a promise to agree to a liberal fishing policy off its coasts in return for the grants which are designed to reduce Britain's net budgetary contribution. Since the bargain was struck in May 1980, West Germany bas replaced Britain as the largest contributor to the EECs $27 billion budget.

Schmidt told a oews conference after the summit leaders failed to agree oo a fishing policy that "now we see ourselves as deceived." He said that when West Germany agreed to increase its sbare of the budget. "We put new taxes on the German people, 1 don't intend to hide my disappointment."

Another attempt to settle the issue of fishing is scheduled for Friday at a meeting of EEC ministers in Brussels. Under the grants announced Wednesday, Scotland will get $191 million, Northern Ireland will get $150 million and England will get the rest. Wales bas already received its share. LONG BEACH, Calif. March 26 -When Alan Jones lived high on the hills overlooking the Long Beach Grand Prix circuit, he dreamed of the day that he would win the race through the streets while his wife, Beverly, and his son, Christian, watched from their front porch.

It never worked out.Last month Jones sold the hillside property and when he came to Long Beach to open defense of his World Formula One Championship, he left his family back on their ranch in Australia.

Beverly and Christian weren't watching but more than 125,000 others were as the stocky Australian drove his white and green Saudi Arabia-sponsored Williams to an easy victory in the sixth annual Toyota Grand Prix of Long Beach. "This is a race I ve wanted to win for many years," said Jones. 34. "1 felt like home here but I had to seli my house before l could win."

The newly-designed Williams cars, driven by Jones and Argentina's Carlos Reutemann, dominated the warm March day, finishing 1-2 with no apparent challengers. Once the pair passed pole-sitter Riccardo Patrese on lap 26 of the 80-lap race, it was a Williams show. The two English-built machines, created with more than $8 million of sponsorship from Saudia Airlines, Albilad and Dallah, their Saudi Arabian backers, were 9.19 seconds apart at the finish with defending Long Beach winner, Nelson Piquet of Brazil, third.

Two Americans, 42-year-old Mario Andretti and 24-year-old Eddie Cheever, finished fourth and fifth. It was the first time two American drivers bad scored points in a world Grand Prix since 1966 in Mexico when Richie Ginther finished fourth and

Dan Gurney fifth.

Actually, the Jones-Reutemann performance is only a continuation of what occurred during the end of the 1980 season. Jones won both the final two races at Montreal and Watkins Glen with his teammate second, making it three straight 1-2 Grand Prix finishes for the Williams team. Also, in a pair of non-points Formula One events hetween seasons, Jones won the Australian Grand Prix and Reutemann won

No Formula One champion has repeated since another Australian, Jack Brabham, won in 1959-60 hut the way Jones ran in the race he is a good bet to pull it off. The new Williams cars were built to maintain ground-effects stability despite the hanning of aerodynamic skirts that were used last

"We put the skirt era out of our minds," said Frank Williams, the llttle Englishman who masterminds the team that uses his name. "We have a new set of rules and moaning about the changes helped absolutely no one."

The race was Jones' almost from the day cars first took to the streets for practice for the meet. He was quickest in every practice period and bnt for one stunningly fast lap during qualifying by Patrese, Jones would have won everything. Patrese squeezed out a 91.588 m.p.h. lap, barely edging Jones' 91.578.

This gave Patrese an advantage for the staggered start of the race and the talented young Italian maintained his advantage until first Reutemann and then Jones pressured him on the 26th lap. Shortly after that Patrese pulled his arrows into the pits and complained of fuel flow difficulties.

Reutemann, who had started third and passed Jones on the start, gave up his lead six laps after passing Patrese when he went wide in the switchbacks on the east side of the circuit and gave teammate Jones an opening.

"Carlos drifted out a little coming down the hill off of ocean and gave me a chance so l dropped down a gear and out-dragged him to the next corner" Jones said.

Asked if Reutemann was under instructions to let him, by Jones said, "when we are that close, we have no instructions, we are On OUr own."

The two lead changes were twice as many as had occurred in five previous Long Beach races. Only in 1978 when Andretti passed Jody Scheckter on Jap 76 had a leader heen overtaken on the narrow and demanding Long Beach circuit.

For the record, Reutemann passed Patrese on the 26th lap and Jones passed Reutemann on the 32nd lap.

"I got a dreadful start," Jones said in explaining why he dropped to a rather distant third before starting to move up. "1 decided as long as 1 wasn't close to Patrese and Carlos, I would sit back and let the clean air get to my car while I checked the petrol and the tires. Then after about 20 laps I thought I would have a go at it."

Although there were a number of walltapping accidents, the most frightening came when Mexico's Hector Rebaque spun his Brabham in the middle of the track at turn 8 on the 49th lap.

"Rehague was a lucky man," Jones said. "I nearly ran over him when he was going over the wall."

The car sat dead in the center of a sharp turn while a number of cars passed on either side before course workers could haul it off. Andretti was one who nearly hit it.

THE MAGNIFICENT MACHINE; The magnificent Sandia-Williams as it glides along the track in all its glory, unchallenged, to add yet another feather to the driver's cap.

Belgium records narrow victory Muhren goal keeps Dutch hope alive

ROTTERDAM, March 26 (R) - Dutch chances of reaching the World Soccer Cup finals were kept alive Wednesday night with a 1-0 win over France in a European Gronp Two qualifying match.

A splendidly-taken goal from a free kick by Arnold Muhren, who plays in England for lpswich, settled the outcome.

Mubran, playing for his country after a three-year hreak, heat a 25-yard left-fout shot round the French defense two minutes into the second half. The goal may have halted the scrapping of what is left of the team which finished World Cup ronners-up in 1974 and 1978.

The Netherlands, having lost two of their three World Cup qualifying matches, needed a win to retain any hope of going through to the finals in Spain next year.

Coach Kees Rijvers chose his most experience line-up but former captain Johan Cruyff withdrew. Rijvers had warned that if the team lost he would drop the veterans and rebuild.

Mohren's creativity and the hrilliance of 34-year-old Piet Schrijvers in goal saved the day. The Dutch team — average age 30 posed no threat in the first half and at halftime a near-capacity crowd of almost 60.000 in the Feynoord Stadium booed them off. But in the end their proud record of not losing at Ten minutes into the second half Didier Six chipped a free kick onto the bar with Schrijvers starting in disbelief. But Schrijvers saved the Dutch early on when he dived to parry a Rocheteau shot and later spreadeagled himself hravely when the Franch were right through.

Late winner

Meanwhile, a late goal from striker Jan Ceulemans gave Belgium a 1-0 victory over Ireland in their World Soccer Cup Group Two qualifying match in Brussels Wednesday night.

Brilliant goalkeeping by Ireland's Jim McDonagh and Belgian Michel Prudhomme seemed to have assured a goalless 90 minutes. But, four minutes from time, Belgium were awarded a free kick on the edge of the penalty area.

Rene Vandereycken curled his shot over the Irish wall. It hit the bar, rebounded - and Ceulemans leaped above a sea of heads to nod it in. McDonagh seemed to have saved the Irish, when, after Ceulemans had worked a clever cross to Erwin Vandenbergh, he pulled off a breathtaking one-handed save.

The game came to life in the second half despite tottential rain and a background of thunder and lightning. Each team attacked boldly hy turn and either could have won.

The Irish were still complaining when they trooped off at haltime. But Belgium were also unlucky at times. In the 25th minute, Chris Hughton cleared an Albert Cluytens volley off the line and later Dave Langan also cleared off the line from Eric Gerets. But the Belgians clearly missed the composure of the injured Wilfried Van Moer. Points shared

In Glasgow, Scotland, looking for the win which would have earned them a firm lead in qualifying Group Six survived a fright against their neighbors of Northern Ireland and settled for a point in their World Cup match Wednesday night.

With 20 minutes left the Irish touk the lead when Billy Hamilton headed a Sammy McIIroy cross past goalkeeper Rough. But the Scots raised their game and five minutes later John Wark, voted player of the year by foot-ballers in the English League, drove a through ball from Willie Miller first time into the net.

At times the Scots seemed to have the measure of an Irish team badly bit by injuries but at other moments it was their own injured

Spain chalks out impressive win

LONDON, March 26, (R) - Spain, who will host the 1982 finals, continued their World Cup build-up in impressive fashion when they beat England 2-1 in an interoa-tional soccer friendly at Wembley Stadium Wednesday night.

While they faded in the second balf after a dazzling opening 45 minutes, the manner of their victory suggests they will mount a serious challenge for the trophy on Spanish soil.

They also provided the star of the night in midfielder Jesus Zamora who teased and tormented England with a repetoire of skills. Recreated the opening goal for Jesus Satrustegui in the fourth minute and although Glenn Hoddle equalized for England in the 27th minnte, Zamora scored the winner just five minutes later.

Spain's first goal, the highlight of the evening was just reward for an exquisite threeman move in which they worked the ball at high speed from deep in their own balf into England's net with just five deadly touches.

Scanlon gives Borg a fright

MILAN, Italy, March 26 (AP) - Topseeded Bjorn Borg, suffering from an erratic serve and seeming to lack concentration, had to struggle for two hours and 12 minutes to defeat Bill Scanlou of the United States in a thrilling second-round match of the $200,000 Cuore Tennis Cup here Wednesday night.

Borg moved into the quarterfinals of the Milan leg of World Championship Tennis with the 6-1, 5-7, 6-3 victory. His success was often in douht in the final set, however, when the unseeded Scanlon exploited several unforced mistakes hy the Swede.

Scanlon climbed to a 3-1 lead hefore failing to make a second service break. The Swede, who had won the first set with ease, fired several passing shots too far. The American played mainly from the baseline and engaged his opponent in tiring long exchanges. When he moved to the net, however, he often volleyed successfully. Scanlon seemed beaded for a quick defeat when he lost his serve three times in the first set and was unable to return his opponents' powerful shots.

In the second set, however, the 24-yearold American improved the quality and strength of his shots. He survived three match points in the ninth game and made a decisive hreak on Borg's serve in the 11th to win the set 7-5.

In the third set, Scanlon hroke his opponent's serve in the first game and climbed to 3-1. Borg returned the break in the sixth game, bowever, and then gained a 5-3 lead through a second hreak in the eighth, which went to deuce several times. Scanlon lost it after netting an easy smash, breaking his racket.

Borg's victory at the Milan Indoor Sports Palace was worth a 2-1 record for the Swede in direct clashes with Scanlon. Borg served three aces hut made seven double faults, Scanlon bad two aces and three double faults.

Consignees are requested to collect their delivery orders by surrendering their original Bill of Lading,

The outcome of such clashes has also been taking the predictability of a tradition. The chairman of the NSC has always emerged victorious, with the secretary of state either accenting a secondary role, or resigning. Thus Kissinger had his say over that of Rogers in the Nixon administration, and Brzezinski over Vance during that of Carter.

It was not surprising that the Reagan administration should see a repetition of the struggle. Vice President George Bush and MSC Chairman Walter Allan stand on one side, and State Department Secretary Haig on the other, over who is to control the country's foreign policy.

While the president appears to have already declared himself for the vice president and the chairman, Secretary of State Haig is expected to put up a stiffer resistance than his predecessors. Indeed, as his icy remarks on the matter show, he has already started.

That the ritual struggle started so early in the life of this administration reflects perhaps the incumbent's awareness of his lack of expertise when it comes to foreign affairs, and his consequent inability to hold the middle ground between the two sides for any length of time.

In any case, the international community cannot but await the outcome so that it knows which brand of "Reaganism" it is to expect from Washington. Gen. Viola, who was selected by the three-man junta representing the hranches of the armed forces last October, has said his will be a military government of transition toward democratie rule and has dismissed the possibility of elections during his 'term.

He has indicated the sincerity of military intentions by naming a new cabinet with a majority of civilians for the first time since the coup.

As commander-in-chief of the army — traditionally Argentina's main military power — Viola, 55. was the obvious successor to Gen. Videla. But his expected appointment at the end of September was delayed for several days while the commanders of the army, navy and air force secretly debated the future of the country.

This led to speculation that armed forces were convinced that Argentina's war against those they saw as leftist subversives was not over. Vinla, described in armed forces circles as a moderate and regarded as a shrewd politician with closer contact with the people than Gen. Videla, was said to be pushing for greater freedom of action.

The junta, which sill holds effective control, only confirmed his nomination after ensuring that the Status quo would remain, informed sources said. Gen. Viola's pre-inauguration visit to the United States earlier this month was seen here as a major step in improving Argentina's international image, tarnished by a harsh anti-guerrilla drive in the mid-1970's which led to the death or disappearance of thousands of people. Viola met President Reagan and other U.S. leaders. His meetings promised to end the strained relations between the two countries that culminated in the United States banning military sales to Argentina in 1978 after calling military government is also under attack from workers who want a return of union independence and the right to strike.

Industrialists, husinessmen and cattle hreeders are angry about the open market policies of outgoing Economics Minister Jose Martinez De Hoz which, they say, have led to a flood of imports and damaged export competitiveness, De Hoz, one of two civilians in the departing cahinet, has been bitterly criticized even though he has successfully reduced Argentina's 740 per cent inflation rate at the time of the coup to a present annual rate of $2 per cent.

The military is determined to stay in power as long as there is any chance of Argentina returning to the chaos at the end of Peronist rule in 1976, say political observers. Right and left-wing extremists in the Peronist movement waged an open guerrilla war when Maria Estella Peron succeeded her husband, Gen. Juan Peron, on his death in 1974 and she was powerless to control them.

Peron first came to power as an army colonel in 1943 and formed a populist party in his name that gained massive support among urban and rural laborers thanks to social generosity at the expense of the Argentine economy. He was deposed by a military coup in 1955 following an economic crisis but still enjoyed widespread popular support.

He returned to Argentina from exile in Spain in 1973 and won general elections by a landslide. Political observers feel that Peronists would emerge triumphant from any elections and believe the military will not step down until a nationalistic and conservative party capable of beating them at the polls has been built up. — ( $\mathbb{R}$ ) of only a few tons during past years.

The total volume of privately-owned gold in Japan, which can he bought easily at gold shops, rose to shout 240 tons at the end of January, compared with about 200 tons in March last year, it added.

The purchase and holding of gold in Japan, which does not yet have an official gold market, is free of tax, unlike securities, land and property. Gold traders said a major spur to booming gold purchases had been the planned introduction of identification systems for hank deposits with tax-free interest on individual accounts not exceeding three million yen ($15,000).

The new system will eliminate the practice of people evading tax on interests by opening, in some cases, many different accounts under fictitious names, which the tax agency said was fairly common among Japanese, the world's most diligent savers.

Japanese gold imports last January rose 4.9 times to 16.3 tons over January 1980, while total imports in the whole of 1980 declined 49.4 per cent to 31.8 tons from 62.8 tons in 1979, the finance ministry said. Imports last year were the lowest since 1973 because of the sharp increase in gold prices following a drop in the U.S. dollar's value after the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan and the taking of American hostages in Tehran.

The recent introduction of small gold hillets each of about 10 grams and South African Krugerrand coins of less than one troy ounce has brought gold within reach of average Japanese salary earners, causing concern among bankers and stockhrokers fearing a shift of private assets to the metal. futures trading either next month or in May after establishing a new company early in April.

The international trade and industry ministry said it would not necessarily oppose plans for a free spot market, but it would use administrative guidance to prevent the involvement of small investors.

The ministry said it was necessary to restrict futures dealings to protect small investors, who had been exploited in the past on the gold black market. But the free market plan has heen opposed as unnecessary by the Gold Bar Distribution Association, whose member companies, including smelters, melters, assayers and major trading houses, cover more than 90 per cent of total gold demand in Japan.

A private study group of the ministry officials and major gold traders is reviewing a report it made last July ruling out the need for a gold market, a ministry official said. The group was established as an advisory body to the natural resources and energy agency, which is in charge of gold supply and demand in Japan. (K).

Saudi Arabian Press Review

Newspapers Thursday dealt with various issues ranging from the rising importance of the Kingdom in world affairs to the ongoing Iraqi Iranian war and the deteriorated security situation in Lebanon. They also dealt with U.S. threats to use force and to establish permanent military bases, the recent visit of the British Defense Minister John Nott also was reported.

Al Jezirah discussed the increasing importance of Riyadh as an Arab and Islamie capital of great significance, and said that others no longer look to it as just another capital to visit for ordinary talks. They have come to realize that Riyadh is the foremost Arah and Islamic capital which can contribute positively to the genuine efforts to find a just and peaceful solution to the Palestinian question.

This is because the Kingdom enjoys not only the confidence and trust of the governments and people of the Arah and Islamic worlds, but also remains the guiding spirit and the center of attraction.

Al Medina dealt with the visit of the British Defense Minister John Nott and said it was an opportunity to discuss matters of mutual interest and the need to make use of British expertise in the construction of installations and the provision of services. It said the government made clear that the Gulf is not a disputed territory between the two superpowers. The peace and security of the region depended on the people themselves and their ability to defend their countries with the help of their friends who should give them the wherewithal to do so alone without foreign intervention. "Our views are identical with those of other Gulf states," the paper said. "All the states should be working to eliminate Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, otherwise it would form a precedent for other imperialist invasions."

Okaz dealt with the Iraqi-Iranian war and the possibility of another round by the Islamic peace mission, which is trying to settle the dispute. It called for full cooperation with the mission and said that it was formed not to condemn anybody but to make peace in the name of all the Islamic states which met at the recent summit in Taif and which represent all the Muslims of the world." The mission realizes that the losers in this conflict are Iraq and Iran and the biggest loser is Islamie awakening," the paper said.

Al Bilad said the security situation in Lebanon is getting worse, which posed serious hazards not only to that country hut to the region as a whole. It deplored the slow reaction to the tragedy by the world at large. It also hlamed the armed militias and the conflicting political trends in the country for the existing fiasco. It singled out the renegade commander Maj. Saad Haddad who is collaborating with the Israelis in the South in order to depopulate the area and prevent the Lebanese government from extending its control over the whole country.

The new American policy and the inclination to use force or to threaten to use force was the subject of the Al Riyadh editorial which wondered if the new American administration had nothing left by way of diplomacy which forced it to talk of naked power and the search for military bases and facilities.

"American threats this time appear quite serious," it said. "The government has passed its foreign policy over to a military man and asked him to blend his militarism with diplomacy."

This leads us to believe that the new White House will strengthen its friendship with the military diotatorships of the world — beginning with Latin America where Reagan and Haig bave already hegun their contacts to help them and contain them hefore they fall prey to Moscow which is equally keen to win them over.

But the paper did not believe that the U.S. will be able to apply this new policy to all its friends and allies and cannot be with one friend against another alls at the same time. It has to be with both or with none, thus may force it to carry out certain wishes and policies which may not be always to its liking.

Missiles hit cities again, Iran says

BEIRUT, March 26 (AP) - Iran bas said Soviet-made Iraqi bombers and surface-tosurface missiles blasted Iranian cities in retaliation for the offensive that brought Iranian troops onto Iraqi border in two major war zones.

Tehran communiques Wednesday said Iraqi long-range artillery pounded residential areas in Iran's besieged oil ratining city of Abadan, prompting the governor to order pharmacies and drugstores reopened because of a "pressing need for medicine and pow-ered milk."

Tehran Radio said four Soviet-made Frog-7 missiles, crashed overnight into Ahwaz, and rescue teams dug out eight bodies of civilians from the rubble of their devastated bomes.

It was the seventh missile assault on Ahwaz in two weeks and the second straight day of persistent shelling of Abadan, the city that accounted for 60 per cent of Iran's pre-war fuel production. Much of the half million population of Ahwaz and most of Abadan's 400,000 inhabitants have already fled their bomes to safer areas in central and eastern Iran.

Iraq made oo comment on Iran's claims, confining itself to routine reporting of the war's progress in a once-a-day military com-munique at the end of the day's fighting.

Dollar remains firm

LONDON, March 26 (AP) - Uccertainty over the future in Poland led to caution on world foreign exchanges Thursday and kept the dollar firm in thin trading, dealers said. Gold prices rose slightly.

"There's essentially no trend," said one European dealer. "Under the current circumstances, it wouldn't be smart to go short on dollars." A deeper crisis in Poland, dealers say, would strengthen the dollar against currencies such as the West German mark. The British pound was worth $2.2598 ($2.2613). In Tokyo, the dollar closed at 209.45 yen, up from 209.19 Wednesday. In later European trading, the dollar was quoted at 210.53 yen.

London's five builion houses fixed a recommended morning gold price of $534 a troy ounce, up from $530.25 late Wednesday. In Zurich, gold traded for $533.50, up from $530.50. In Hong Kong, gold rose $2.39 to close at $535.99. In New York Wednesday gold finished at $530. Silver was quoted in London at $12.95 an ounce, up from $12.75.

China gets vitamin aid

PEKING, March 26 (R) - A consignment of 17 million vitamin tablets arrived in Peking by air Thursday as part of an international relief effort for two thisaster-hit Chinese provinces, diplomatic sources said. China made its first request to the international community for aid to belp an estimated 40 million people affected by drought in the northern province of Hebei and by flooding in the central province of Hubei.

A United Nations team which visited the stricken areas in January estimated that $700 million of aid was needed, according to diplomatic sources. The vitamin tablets, sent by the United Nations Children's Fund, were the first consignment of aid to reach here, the sources said.

America, European allies still differ on defense issues WASHINGTON, March 26 (R) - The this position as "trrelevant if the Netherlands United States and three of its main allies remain far apart on some major defense issues following high-level Pentagon talks this week, American officials say. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger mel the Duich and West German defense ministers and Japan's foreign minister for discussions ranging from nuclear arms to pacifist sentiment in western Europe.

Despite efforts by both sides to sound positive, officials said they were still far apart on such major issues as military spending and arms control talks. These included the longstanding debate over who is or is not carrying a fair share of the allied military spending burden. This dispute is still alive if no longer fought as publicly or as bitterly as during the Carter administration.

The U.S. officials said there were differences hetween the United States and the two European allies over whether priority should go to resuming arms talks with Moscow or building NATO military forces. A Pentagon official said a firm commitment to upgrade medeum range nuclear weapons deployed in Europe by NATO must precede these talks so the United States can negotiate from strength.

Dutch Defense Minister Pieter de Geus told reporters after his meeting with Weinberger that The Hague was delaying a decision on deploying new nuclear arms in hopes Moscow and Washington would agree on mutual reductions first. He said the Dutch unalterably opposed neutron weapons, which Weinberger favors, and they waot assurances Washington will not raise this question later before they agree to deploy their share of NATO's new Cruise missiles.

He also called for a shift in emphasis from battlefield nuclear weapons to longer-range deterrent ones. A Pentagon official described is already overrun" by Soviet tanks before the West can respond. Differences with West German Defense Minister Hans Apel were less obvious, in part because of Washington's effort to smoothen over the flap caused last week by a Reagan adviser who criticized Bonn's pressure for negotiating with the Russians.

But the West Germans may have been surprised at what the Pentagon said was its discovery that Bonn planned to increase rather than cut defense spending this year. This is a
